

KENTUCKY LAWYER

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY COLLEGE OF LAW - 1993

A PANTHEON OF DEANS: Tom Lewis, Bob Lawson, David Shipley and Biff Campbell

THE DEAN

David Shipley becomes Dean of the College of Law

The College of Law welcomes David E. Shipley as its new dean, effective July 1, 1993. Dean Shipley comes to us from the University of Mississippi School of Law, where he served as Dean and Director of the Law Center for the last three years.

Dean Shipley was raised in Champaign, Illinois, and was graduated from University High School at the University of Illinois. He received his B.A. degree with Highest Honors in American History from Oberlin College in 1972, and is a 1975 graduate of the University of Chicago Law School, where he was Executive Editor of the University of Chicago Law Review in 1974-75. After practicing law in the firm of Tillinghast, Collins & Graham in Providence, Rhode Island, he began teaching at the University of South Carolina School of Law in 1977. His areas of legal expertise are copyright and administrative law. His most recent publication is a casebook, Copyright Law: Cases and Materials, West Publishing 1992, with co-authors Howard Abrams of the University of Detroit School of Law and Sheldon Halpern of Ohio State University. Shipley also has published two editions of a treatise on administrative procedure in South Carolina entitled South Carolina Administrative Law. He has taught Civil Procedure, Remedies, Domestic Relations and Intellectual Property as well as Copyright and Administrative Law. In addition, he has participated in a wide variety of activities and functions sponsored by the South Carolina and Mississippi bars.

Dean Shipley enjoys reading best-selling novels by authors such as Grisham, Crichton, Turow and Clancy as well as history books about the Civil War. He runs regularly and likes yard and garden work. He and his family are SEC sports fans, and they look forward to attending football and basketball games at Kentucky.

THE DEAN

Dear Alumni and Friends:

It's a great honor for me to have been selected as the new dean at the University of Kentucky College of Law. This is an outstanding law school which is a vital part of a dynamic university. I am excited about my new position, and my family and I are pleased to make Lexington our new home. We look forward to meeting all of the law school's alumni and friends.

I will have been on the job a little more than a month when this edition of the Kentucky Lawyer reaches you. This new office is a major change for me after three very good years as dean of the University of Mississippi School of Law and thirteen years as a faculty member at the University of South Carolina School of Law. My arrival at UK also represents a major change for the College of Law as well, as the culmination of a national dean search which started last winter. In the words of radio personality Paul Harvey, "and now, the rest of the story" about my decision to make this career change and move my family to Lexington, Kentucky from Oxford, Mississippi.

It all started when I received a telephone call from Professor Gene Gaetke, Chair of the Dean Search Committee. He said I had been nominated as a potential candidate, and he asked me to send a vita as quickly as possible. I used the fax machine and before long Professor Sarah Welling, another member of the search committee, told me they had been screening candidates and wanted to check on me with some of my colleagues at Ole Miss and elsewhere. I said yes and the screening continued.

In March I learned I had made the College of Law's version of the final four: the Dean Search Committee wanted me to come to campus for interviews.

I visited Lexington on April 7, 8 and 9 of this year. Although it is exhausting to keep smiling and to be simultaneously witty, charming, thoughtful, polite, and enthusiastic from breakfast at 7:00 a.m. all the way through a full day of interviews and a late dinner at Spindletop, I thoroughly enjoyed my time with faculty, staff, students and alumni. My interviews must have gone well because several weeks later, on April 21, 1993, I received an offer I could not refuse. I returned to Lexington with my wife Jenny Coleman in early May to look for a house (we were successful); we put our home in Oxford on the market (I have had nightmares about paying mortgages on two homes); we went to the Kentucky Bar Convention in June; I loaded my wife's Ford Explorer, drove to Lexington and moved into UK's graduate student housing at the end of June; I became official as dean on July 1; and, my wife and daughter Shannon joined me in our new home in early August. There are still a few boxes left to unpack. Fortunately, the adrenaline is still pumping!

There are many reasons why I was eager to accept the offer to become dean of the College of Law. First of all, the law school is in great shape. It enjoys a fine reputation. Its graduates are leaders in the bar, the judiciary, the world of business, and in politics and public affairs. The school has a very strong and diverse student body. There is an excellent faculty of dedicated teachers and productive scholars who actively serve the profession. The College's alumni are loyal and very generous. The University's administration is very supportive of the law school's mission and its ambitious goals for the future. In addition, the school has benefited from many years of strong leadership in the Dean's office. I inherit from Biff Campbell and his predecessors, Bob Lawson and Tom Lewis, the enviable job of leading a strong law school which is on the rise.

There are challenges for me and my colleagues but the issues and questions facing the College of Law are no different from those confronting all of legal education. For instance, there is increasing demand for law schools to offer more classes which focus on interviewing, counseling, and negotiation skills. There is interest in expanding clinical programs. We are being asked to do much more to improve our students' writing skills. Law school libraries need to keep pace with changes in information technology. These developments have an impact on law school curriculums and faculties as well as on how law schools decide to allocate their resources.

The fundamental strength of any law school lies in its faculty, staff, students, library and alumni. In my opinion, the University of Kentucky College of Law is very healthy and strong. We are well prepared to meet all of these challenges. I look forward to working with all of you to make the College of Law even stronger.

THE DEAN

A Farewell from Dean Campbell

This is my last Dean's Letter, and so I claim my right to ramble on a bit.

The most important part of our law school is not the law building or the law library, nor is it our students, faculty or alumni. Instead, the most important part of our law school is our dreams. I realize this sounds like someone who grew up in the Camelot era and never recovered, but, in fact, the statement is true and has monumental pragmatic ramifications.

The pragmatic significance of dreams is fairly obvious. Reality is limited by dreams. Unless we dream big, big things don't happen. If we dream small dreams, small things happen, and, unfortunately so much of life, especially university life, seems designed to make one dream small dreams and think little thoughts.

I am convinced, however, that we now have big dreams for the law school and that these big dreams have made a dramatic difference in the quality of our law school and its future. Now, we want and expect more for the law school. We expect and receive more financial support from the central administration. We no longer are willing to say to the administration, "Aw shucks, just give us what's left over." We expect more from our private support. We have gone from literally no private support a few years ago to $720,000 in private support for 1992. We expect outstanding students. We expect strong production from our faculty.

My one piece of advice for our new Dean, David Shipley, and for all of us who are a part of the law school is to continue to dream big.

The most enjoyable parts of my job for the last five years have been getting to be with good people and getting to know my home state better. The people have been marvelous. I have made new friends from the banks of the Big Sandy to the Mississippi and from New York to Los Angeles. I have seen the best sides of people. I have seen generosity, magnanimity and true compassion. Our alumni and friends care about education, the law school and our state, and it has been invigorating and reassuring to work with such fine people.

It also has been tremendously enjoyable to travel Kentucky. I have rambled the backroads and driven the superhighways. I have seen the sun set on Lake Barkley and thunderstorms deep in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. I have eaten in elegance in Louisville and listened to intriguing discussions of politics and philosophy in "country" restaurants in small towns like Munfordville and Salt Lick. It has been enlightening and great fun.

An old Bob Dylan song, Subterranean Homesick Blues, has roughly the following lines: "Johnnie's in the basement mixing up the medicine; I'm on the pavement thinking about the government." These lines aptly describe my life after July 1.

As you may or may not know, the traditions of the law school require old deans to take up offices in the basement, a tradition to which I gladly accede. So, after July 1, look for me in the basement of the law school. I'll be down there "mixing up the medicine" and "thinking about the government."

Come see me.

The Case of the Broadcasting Barrister

Roger Perry '75

The portly bearded attorney made his way to the lectern in front of the jury, and leaned on his cane. The judge said, "Perry, you can begin." As he turned to the jury box, the lawyer faced the television cameras that would carry his words over the national television network. This was the "Case of the Broadcasting Barrister."

Was it another episode of Perry Mason? No, although the attorney facing the cameras did have the same beard, belly, cane and name. It was Kentucky attorney Roger Perry (UK Law '75, Long & Perry Attorneys, Benton, Kentucky, practicing with George E. Long II, UK '71). This was not the movie of the week, and the national coverage was not by NBC or CBS. Covering the trial was COURT-TV, the same network that covered the William Kennedy Smith rape trial in Florida.

COURT-TV debuted on July 1, 1991, taking advantage of the fact that at least 44 states at that time permitted cameras in the courtroom, and the federal court system was to begin video coverage of some of its civil proceedings. The 24-hour cable network offers live coverage of "prominent trials," and is backed by Time-Warner, Inc. a major media company, as well as by NBC. COURT-TV is the brainchild of Steven Brill, who founded The American Lawyer magazine in 1978.

COURT-TV already has covered live or included in its promotional videos several sensational trials, including New York's "Fatal Attraction" murder trial, the trial of Marlon Brando's son and the Rodney King trial. The only trial that has been broadcast live from Kentucky was our case, Commonwealth v. Charles Chumbler, Michael Kariakis and Holly Kariakis. The Commonwealth's Attorney presenting the case in the McCracken Circuit Court in October, 1991, was Thomas L. Osborne (UK Law '72). He was assisted by Tim Holly Kariakis; and her husband Michael Kariakis was represented by Joe Freeland (UK Law '38) and Michael Burman.

Charles Chumbler's wife had been shot and killed at Christmas, 1990, in rural McCracken County. Mrs. Chumbler was standing at the entrance to the horse lot on the Chumbler family farm, watching the snow fall on the wooded lot and the horses. She was planning a painting of the scene. Her husband and toddler grandson were in the lot feeding apples to the horses when Mrs. Chumbler fell, fatally stricken by a single shot from a high-powered hunting rifle. Initially the case was investigated as a hunting accident. But the investigation soon shifted to her schoolteacher husband Charles, and his foster son, Michael Kariakis.

The media became filled with charges, allegations and suspicions that Charles and Michael were also lovers. Further, the stories alleged that Charles had arranged for Michael secretly to come to Kentucky with his most recent wife, Holly, to ambush Mrs. Chumbler from a hiding spot in a shed on the horse lot. This became known as the "Shooter in the Shed" theory. There were claims made that Michael was an assassin for organized crime, and that he had purchased a special weapon for the crime.

Roger Perry '75 arguing the Chumbler case.

Kaltenbach (UK Law '80). I represented Charles Chumbler; James Harris (UK Law '74) of Paducah represented

It was not difficult to determine how COURT-TV selected this particular trial. In addition to the courtroom's being "camera friendly" (it had long been the practice of the local access channel on Paducah's cable television system to cover interesting trials, and the courtroom was well-equipped for cameras and microphones), there had been a great deal of very sensational pre-trial publicity in many Kentucky newspapers, as well as on the local television station. The trial also had a great deal of coverage in Florida, the home of all three defendants.

Because of all the media attention, the Court granted a motion by defense for a change of venue. The case was transferred from the docket of the McCracken Circuit Court to the docket of the Livingston Circuit Court. Jury selection occurred in Smithland, the Livingston County seat, and a jury was selected from Livingston County. However, after that the trial was moved back to the McCracken Circuit Courtroom for security reasons. So in spite of the change of venue, the trial actually occurred in McCracken County.

One of the defendants had changed his name to that of a television soap opera character. There were allegations of a homosexual love affair, and the Commonwealth attempted to introduce a variety of sexual aids in support of their theory. There were claims that one of the defendants had been a "hit man" for the mob, and had the power to mesmerize his various wives. There was talk of clandestine meetings, footprints in the snow, a disappearing rifle which reappeared in the farm fishing pond only to disappear again, and a great many other sensational elements.

The trial resulted in convictions for all three defendants. Those convictions are on appeal before the Kentucky

Supreme Court, where all the defendants now are being represented by the Department of Public Advocacy.

It seems that the programmers for COURT-TV use many of the same criteria as other network programmers. If a show can guarantee its viewers lots of sex, violence, and intrigue, then it has a much better chance of being a long-running program.

A great many people watched the proceedings live locally on the Paducah cable system. The trial took place in the middle of a hotly contested circuit

"Oh yeah, you're the one with the

judge's race, and final sentencing took place on Saturday morning before the election on the following Tuesday. The trial had lasted the entire month of October. This was the most expensive trial in the history of McCracken County.

The reality of televised proceedings certainly adds a new dimension to the ancient concept of a public trial. KET covers the proceedings of the Kentucky General Assembly. C-SPAN allows a nationwide audience to observe the proceedings of Congress. There is an old adage that two things one never wants to see being made are sausage and legislation. Yet, the popularity of these programs belies that old saw. The people, through the media as their First Amendment representatives, now have the opportunity to be a part of a genuinely participatory government.

Yet for the trial lawyer, there are certainly pitfalls to having such an extensive viewing audience. On a Thursday afternoon near the end of the trial, an expert witness was called for the defense. He testified at great length, relying on a variety of charts, diagrams and "mock ups" regarding the trajectory and flight of the bullet that killed Mrs. Chumbler.

That testimony was broadcast live, and before the witness had left the stand, the telephones in the prosecutor's office were ringing. A number of people had called to say that the witness had not been truthful regarding his credentials. Not only was he not licensed to practice that profession, he was not a college graduate.

By the next morning, witnesses were being flown in to attack the credibility of the expert for the defense. Yet, this is precisely one of the reasons why the Anglo-Saxon legal system has long relied on the public trial. There are some errors in proceedings that only public scrutiny can cure.

While this writer has no idea of the size of the national audience nor the effect that it may have had on them, a great many people in the Paducah area have commented about the trial. The televised coverage had an impact on their understanding of how the criminal justice system works, and remains the topic of considerable conversation nearly two years later. It was an experience that I certainly will remember.

On a personal note, it has been generally pleasing to encounter people who remember me from the trial. Although it is an unnerving experience to have one of the most important trials in your career candidly reviewed by thousands of critics, it does have its moments. These television viewers grew up on a diet of "The Defenders," "The D.A." and "L.A. Law." So perhaps it is not surprising that I am commonly greeted with the remark, "Oh yeah, you're the one with the bald spot!"

STEPHEN BRIGHT '75 DELIVERS SWINFORD LECTURE

College of Law alumnus Stephen B. Bright '75 delivered the eighth biennial Judge Mac Swinford Lecture sponsored by the College of Law and the Kentucky Bar Association on October 22, 1992. Bright's lecture, entitled "The Bill of Rights vs. the Billable Hour: Protecting Fundamental Values in a Material World," was attended by approximately 250 people.

Bright is director of the Southern Center for Human Rights in Atlanta. He leads a nine-lawyer staff who represent persons facing the death penalty and prisoners challenging conditions in prisons and jails throughout the south. According to Bright, "The Bill of Rights is unfinished business in our society."

Much of Bright's lecture focused on the judicial process used in enforcing capital punishment. "My concern is the commitment that we have for the poorest and powerless among us," said Bright. He continued by saying that the principal failing of the death penalty system today is the inadequacy of counsel assigned to represent indigent defendants. Citing an ABA report, Bright said, "One-fourth of those people awaiting execution were represented by lawyers who have since then been disbarred, suspended or indicted."

Often, the first case a public defense lawyer tries is a death penalty case. "Many people on death penalty cases are being represented by lawyers who most people wouldn't have represented them on a minor traffic violation," said Bright.

A major problem for defense attorneys is the payment scale for them, especially in death penalty cases. "Communities can always afford special prosecutors, to get experts, to investigate, etc., but they can't afford defense attorneys," said Bright. In Kentucky, for instance, public defenders are limited to $2500 per death penalty case. In fact, said Bright, the cost of building four miles of highway from Liberty to Frankfort exceeds the entire Department of Public Advocacy budget.

The Judge Mac Swinford Lecture series began in 1978 in honor of the memory of U.S. District Court Judge Mac Swinford. During his lifetime, he served as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, as the U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky and as U.S. District Judge.

Law Alumni Association Honors Deans Campbell and Shipley

On Wednesday evening, June 16, the College of Law Alumni Association sponsored a dinner honoring outgoing dean Rutheford B Campbell, Jr. and incoming dean David E. Shipley. The dinner, held at the Seelbach Hotel in Louisville, was attended by nearly 200 alumni and friends.

Several speakers at the dinner honored Dean Campbell for his service to the College of Law. Former Dean Robert G. Lawson '63 spoke about the trials and tribulations of being dean. Joe B. Campbell '68, then President of the Kentucky Bar Association, praised Biff for the benefits to the bar of his advancement of the College of Law. UK President Charles T. Wethington, Jr. spoke of his service to the University.

At the end of the remarks, Law Alumni Association President Edward J. Buechel '77 presented Dean Campbell with a gift from the Association, a weekend trip to New York City and a night at the opera for Biff and his wife, Mary. Dean Campbell then introduced incoming dean David Shipley to the alumni.

rence, E. Phillips Malone '66 of Owensboro, John V. Porter, Jr. '70 of Paintsville, Jerry P. Rhoads '66 of Madisonville and Ron L. Walker, Jr. '87 of Lexington were elected to the Board of the Law Alumni Association, and Ed Buechel was honored for his service as President of the Law Alumni Association for 1992-93. At a meeting of the Board just before the dinner, Kathy Arterberry was elected President of the Association for 1993-94.

CLE

UK/CLE NEWS

by Associate Dean Todd Eberle

UK/CLE, the College of Law's Office of Continuing Legal Education, commemorates twenty years of service to the profession in 1993. As the first provider of professional development services established in Kentucky, the office has sustained a high level of service throughout its history.

Earlier this year, UK/CLE resumed sponsorship of the law school's annual conferences on mineral law, conducted in recent years by the UK Mineral Law Center. The first annual program was begun by UK/CLE in the fall of 1976 and we are proud to continue in the excellent tradition of mineral law programs carried on by former UK Professor David Short and the Mineral Law Center.

UK/CLE STAFF

Business Manager Susan Saunier celebrated her ninth year with the office and was admitted to membership in the Association of Continuing Legal Education Administrators. Associate Dean Todd Eberle was elected President of the Association of Continuing Legal Education Administrators at their annual meeting in New York City. He also serves as editor of The Handbook for Continuing Legal Education Professionals, fourth edition, which issued its first supplement in 1993.

Editorial Assistant/Marketing Manager Barbara Sliker replaced Charlene Montgomery, who married and relocated to Chicago. Barbara divides her time between composition of handbooks and monographs and the management of publicity for programs and publications.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The fall 1992 course schedule was highlighted by a major educational effort covering the new Kentucky Rules of Evidence. Professors Robert Lawson '63 and William Fortune '64 teamed with Judge William Cooper '70 of Elizabethtown for eight full-day presentations across the state from August through October.

In November, the 9th Workers' Compensation Institute convened practitioners, judges and state officials for this critical biennial update relied upon by the workers' compensation bar. December's program on bankruptcy offered a "fundamentals" course via statewide video to complement our traditional advanced course presented in odd numbered years.

January welcomed a regional faculty for the 5th Biennial Midwest/Midsouth Construction Law Institute. February's Business Transitions program introduced two new monograph publications in the business/corporations area. The 13th Annual Conference on Legal Issues for Financial Institutions was held in Louisville and continued to draw the traditional loyal audience for this popular mid-March event.

The 8th Annual National Conference on Equine Law was highly praised by the largest audience since 1986. May's half-day program on legal ethics was presented in Lexington with closed circuit video transmission giving statewide coverage. July brought a national faculty to celebrate the 20th year of the Midwest/Midsouth Estate Planning Institute.

PUBLICATIONS

The largest project of this year has been the gathering and indexing of materials for Kentucky Legal Ethics Opinions and Professional Responsibility Deskbook. A joint effort between UK/CLE and the Kentucky Bar Association, it collects all of Kentucky's legal and judicial ethics opinions in a single volume along with current rules and other resources in the area of professional responsibility. Professor Richard Underwood serves as general editor.

The 1993 supplement to Federal Criminal Practice became the eighth supplement issued in our fifteen-title practice handbook library and contains a new chapter on double jeopardy by Professor Fortune. Four new monographs expand the number in that series to 13 and are titled: Business Formations and Terminations, Buying and Selling a Business, Kentucky Rules of Evidence, and Professional Service Corporations In Kentucky.

If you have questions about upcoming courses or would like a copy of our publications catalog, please call us at (606) 257-2921.

FACULTY

Professor Donald A. Winslow died in November 1992. He had been an Associate Professor at the College of Law since 1986, teaching taxation and business law courses. His promotion to full professor, in progress at the time of his death, was approved this spring by the Board of Trustees as a tribute to Don Winslow's contributions. A graduate of UCLA with J.D. and M.B.A. degrees from Cornell University, Winslow worked as a law clerk to Judge Elbert P. Tuttle, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, and as an associate with Sutherland, Asbill & Brennan in Atlanta before coming to the College of Law. The following is taken from remarks delivered by David P. Grise '83 at a service for Professor Winslow held in Memorial Hall last November.

Professor Donald A. Winslow

A MEMORY OF DON WINSLOW

by David P. Grise '83

Most of you knew Donald Winslow as professor or colleague. Perhaps I can offer a different perspective. My family knew him as friend and neighbor. We met, as my wife says, over the heads of our children. Edward Winslow and Emily Grise are the same age. They were in the same kindergarten class and now go to first grade at the same school. Living only four houses apart, they became fast friends.

Don and I spent many an hour sitting out on the lawn watching the children run. And between applying band-aids to scraped knees and preventing minor catastrophes there was time to talk. To talk about history and politics, of elementary schools and law schools, of what our children would be like in ten or twenty years. We discussed when to take the training wheels off his son's bicycle with the gravity of arms negotiators considering a SALT treaty. And we talked to Ed and Emily about their announced intention to get married at age five. (Don simply convinced them that, if they got married and moved out now, there would be no one to drive them to McDonalds.)

If the day was dull, you knew you could walk down to the Winslow's and mention Oliver North, Alan Dershowitz, Spiro Agnew, Martha Wilkinson, Ted Kennedy or Robert Bork and be entertained for the rest of the evening. Don held his opinions strongly, and stated them boldly. He held himself to high standards and expected others to do the same. He had little tolerance for arrogance or corruption or hypocrisy. His loyalty to teaching and to this University was complete.

He used every opportunity to expand his son's mind. He believed firmly that academic inquiry was an enjoyable route to understanding—and the places that he and Mary took their son proved it. A person could probably obtain a GED merely by studying the contents of his son's bedroom.

I read the article about Don's passing in the newspaper. It was the obituary of an educated man. It told of his degrees and publications and honors. But it could not list those things not easily quantified. It could not say that he was available to help his neighbors on short notice. It could not say that when our families took the children on the paddle boats at Jacobson Park that he did most of the paddling. It could not mention that he would listen to my war stories from trials past for the second or third time and pretend that he had not heard them before. No mention of fixing my computer, comparing old political buttons or trading magazines and books.

One scene typifies Donald Winslow. When his illness had progressed to the point where he was unable to attend classes at the law school, when he could not walk without assistance, he would invite Emily down to his house after school and give Ed and Emily Spanish lessons. He did this at a time when the world would have understood and excused withdrawal and self pity. When others would have given up, Donald Winslow was still teaching.

The last portion of Don's life was tough—about as tough as this world can be. He fought his illness for over a year. But he did not fight alone. The constant care and compassion of his wife Mary is a tribute to the kind of love described by the Apostle Paul in 1st Corinthians 13—a love that is patient and kind, that always protects, always trusts and always hopes.

In all the times we were together that year, he never once complained. Not once. The only thing he asked for was a little distraction now and then. The only concerns he expressed were for his family. He loved them dearly. Last year, we conspired to purchase Mary's Christmas gift and have it delivered as a surprise. With great effort he went with us to the kindergarten Mother Goose pageant and praised his son's performance lavishly. Soon after he entered the hospital the last time, Don was unable to speak. But the message on his face when Mary came into view was unmistakable.

Many of us came and talked to him about many things, but the thing which made him focus all of his attention and energy was any mention of his son. The last time I saw him laugh was on a Sunday afternoon. I told him that Ed had announced that he would never sit next to my three-year-old daughter in church again. Ed said that he could no longer sit next to someone who danced and pulled her skirt over her head when the music started.

They say that friendship is worth more than gold. Many of us have lost a great fortune. But we can rejoice in the legacy he has left us—his love for his family, his courage, his friendship and his son.

This Cousea Dogwood tree was donated by Don Winslow's father and stepmother, and planted at the front corner of the College of Law Building in Don's honor.

Labor Law Down Under

by Alvin Goldman, Dorothy Salmon
Professor of Law

There are few experiences as dull as flying at night. In August of 1992 my wife Ellie (UK Law '75) and I flew 14 hours overnight to Sydney, Australia, to participate in the World Congress of the International Industrial Relations Association, and to visit with several Australians we had met at other conferences.

The conference was two weeks away when we arrived. Since August is late winter in Australia, we headed north from Sydney to enjoy some warm weather and see a less tamed part of the country. Cairns was our home base for the first few days. We saw aboriginal villages, art and dance; went scuba diving at the Great Barrier Reef; and everywhere observed a wide array of birds—parrots, ibises, herons, and other species. We even saw a colony of flying foxes—nocturnal animals blanketing the trees in which they snoozed.

Refreshed and invigorated, we flew to Brisbane to meet Ron Meiklejohn, a union representative whom I had met at a Buenos Aires conference several years earlier. Ron took us to a wildlife sanctuary, where we learned that although Australians regard kangaroos as pests, they have a fondness for koalas and especially for wombats (a groundhog-sized waddling, furry, gentle creature). From Ron's backyard we were shown a fenced-out, crocodile-infested creek and had our first encounter with the raucous scream of the kingfisher-like kookaburra.

By this time we had discovered that proposed reforms of the labor relations system, supposedly to be modeled on the U.S., had become the hot political topic in the country. The newspaper articles had me perplexed for two reasons. First, most of the discussed reforms appeared vague in content; second, the attempted analogy to U.S. practices indicated considerable misunderstanding regarding our system. Rod offered some union perspectives regarding the nature of the debate, and confirmed my suspicion that the politicians had little to offer in the way of concrete, consistent formulas for change, and were using the U.S. as a model with very little understanding of how our labor law and labor relations systems operate.

With the help of Rod and some other Australian friends, I was scheduled to talk to Richard Sappey's graduate class in industrial relations at one of the several campuses of Queensland University of Technology. My charge was to outline U.S. law and draw some comparisons with the Australian system. The class was held in the evening; by day, many of the students work for unions or management in the industrial relations field. Thus, the group was well informed, attentive, and perceptive.

Our next stop was Melbourne, a sophisticated metropolis with excellent art museums, concert halls and theatres. Our host in Melbourne, Professor Rod McCallum of Monash University, is one of the leading authorities on Australian labor law. Rod had recently accepted the Blake Dawson Waldron Professorship at the University of Sydney's law school. There are few endowed professorships in Australia, so this was a very special honor.

Professor Goldman back in "the States" teaching Labor Law.

One evening I spoke to Ron's graduate law class in occupational safety and health. The class is conducted at a downtown law firm which maintains a lecture hall for training programs. Prior to the talk we spent about an hour with the labor law group at the firm discussing our area of common interest over wine and cheese. By the time the class began, I was somewhat encumbered by having consumed more wine than cheese, resulting in an irony that Rod noted for the group since my topic was the American law respecting drug and alcohol testing in the workplace.

Sydney Harbor

From Melbourne we flew back to Sydney for the World Congress of the International Industrial Relations Association. Sydney shares with Vancouver our vote for the most beautiful, enjoyable city we have ever visited.

The diversions aside, I did have a heavy conference schedule that limited my exploration of the sights. As soon as we checked into the hotel, I took a cab to the inaugural meeting of an international organization of labor arbitrators and other impartial participants in labor-management relations. This was followed by a full conference schedule of papers, panel discussions and workshops on comparative industrial relations. Equally important, I had the opportunity to see colleagues from other countries with whom I have been involved in various projects, and to make new contacts of this sort.

From one lobby discussion emerged a potential new collaboration with Jacques Rojot, a French labor law professor whom I had not seen in several years; from another such discussion emerged a decision to establish the International Society for Sports Law. (Under the leadership of our friend Roger Blanpain, whom a number of UK alumni have met, this is now a reality. I am in the midst of establishing the U.S. branch. Anyone interested in joining should contact me.)

During the course of the conference I took time out to teach a labor law class for Theresa MacDermott at the University of Sydney. My final academic task was to present a workshop paper analyzing labor mediation using the strategic choice model I developed for teaching negotiating.

Although the stay in Sydney was heavily programmed, it did not preclude the opportunity for fine dining, a stroll and tea in the Chinese garden, a walk in the botanical garden, and a matinee at Sydney's famous Opera House. The latter, though, provided us with a clue that it was time to return home—it was a fine performance dominated by the brilliant voice of the lead soprano, an American guest artist.

SHORT BECOMES DEAN AT CHASE

On July 1, 1993, David C. Short '67, formerly a member of the College of Law faculty and Director of its Mineral Law Center, became Dean of the Salmon P. Chase College of Law at Northern Kentucky University. He replaced Henry L. Stephens, Jr. '75, who resigned in 1992 to return to teaching. Short's appointment was announced in February of this year.

Short joined the UK law faculty in 1983, after working as a regional director in the Office of Surface Mining, U.S. Department of the Interior, and as an assistant attorney general and assistant deputy attorney general in Kentucky's Office of the Attorney General. From 1973 to 1978 he was Director of the Division of Natural Resources and Environmental Law. In addition to his work as Director of the Mineral Law Center, Short has taught in the areas of international environmental law, environmental law and coal law.

"We will miss Dave's guidance and direction," said then dean Biff Campbell after the announcement of the appointment, "but we are proud of his accomplishments and wish him all the best in his new endeavors."

RANDALL-PARK COLLOQUIUM SERIES ENRICHES COLLEGE OF LAW

by John H. Garvey, Ashland Oil
Professor of Law

The intellectual life of the law school has been enriched by two generous gifts endowing a series of faculty colloquia. Since 1984 the law school has held monthly meetings to discuss work in progress being done by members of the law faculty and by people elsewhere in the university. In 1990 Katherine Randall '73 and James Park, Jr. '58 created an endowment so that the colloquium series could be enlarged to bring in faculty from outside the university. In 1991 Randall and Park increased the endowment with another gift.

The Randall-Park Faculty Colloquium Series has now become an institution at the law school. During the past three academic years it has brought in a number of distinguished speakers. In 1990-91 Frederick Schauer, the Frank Stanton Professor at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government, gave a paper entitled "Exceptions" which dealt with the logical structure of legal rules—the First Amendment in particular. His talk has since been published (with appropriate thanks to the law school) as "Exceptions," 58 U. Chicago L. Rev. 871 (1991). That same academic year Sara Sun Beale, a Professor of Law at Duke University Law School, gave a paper entitled "Looking for Law in All the Wrong Places." In 1991-92 Carol Rose, the Fred A. Johnston Professor of Property at Yale Law School, gave a paper dealing with differences between men and women with regard to property ownership. Rose's paper was later published as "Women and Property: Gaining and Losing Ground," 78 Virginia L. Rev. 421 (1992).

During the 1992-93 academic year the Colloquium Series featured Randall Kennedy, a Professor at Harvard Law School, and Philip P. Frickey, a Professor at the University of Minnesota Law School. Kennedy spoke about "Race, Liberal Sentimentality, and Criminal Sentencing." Frickey gave a talk entitled "Law, Context, and Interpretation" which focused on the Supreme Court's recent decisions in cases involving American Indians. The Series also included papers by four members of the College of Law faculty: Richard C. Ausness ("Wild Dunes and Serboman Bogs"), Mary J. Davis ("Design Defect Liability"), and William H. Fortune '64 and Robert G. Lawson '63 ("Law Reform in Kentucky"). In January and February of this year the colloquia were given by Jerry R. Skees, a Professor in the UK Department of Agricultural Economics, and by Michael T. Nietzel, the Chair of the UK Department of Psychology. Nietzel holds a joint appointment at the College of Law.

The format for the colloquia is designed to encourage an exchange of ideas, particularly with visiting scholars. Speakers are asked to circulate drafts of their papers several weeks in advance, to give attendees an opportunity to read and critique the work. Thursday afternoons from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. are reserved on the law school's calendar for colloquium gatherings. All classes and committee meetings are scheduled outside that block of time. The colloquia are held in the faculty lounge on the second floor of the law school, with soft drinks and cookies to attract those who need a little extra inducement.

Visiting scholars usually spend an additional day at the law school getting acquainted with faculty who work in their area of expertise.

Croatian Law School Dean Visits UK

In February the College of Law hosted Professor Vinko Hlaca, the dean of the law school in Rijeka, Croatia. Dean Hlaca is one of three Eastern European deans visiting various law schools in the United States in the Sister Law School Program sponsored by the American Bar Association and the Central and Eastern European Law Initiative. The other deans are from Romania and Bulgaria.

The Sister Law School Program matches U.S. law schools with institutions in Central and Eastern Europe to facilitate the exchange of ideas and scholarship, to promote mutual understanding and to improve legal education both in the United States and in Europe. In addition to the benefits the Eastern European law schools gain from their participation in the exchange program, according to former dean Biff Campbell there are advantages to UK's participation as well. "It gives us a chance to do something good and for some of us to get involved in the transition process."

One of the interesting features Dean Hlaca noted about UK is its law library. He said that the computerization in the library is something he was seeing for the first time and that the amount of reference material available to students is overwhelming.

In an address to students, Dean Hlaca traced the history of Croatia since the seventh century and outlined Croatia's fight for independence from the Serbs and Yugoslavia. According to Hlaca, "The tragic destiny of Bosnia and Hercegovina is reflected on Croatia. While our neighbor is at war, there is no peace in our country." Croatia declared its independence in 1990, but the Serbs continued to fight there until 1992, when the United Nations Protection Forces stepped in to protect Croatia.

Since the transition of its new legal system began, Croatia has enacted 30 of the estimated 182 new laws that are needed. "The remaining are to be enacted by the end of 1993," Dean Hlaca said. "The whole Croatian legal system must conform to the constitution by the end of the year." Hlaca stated that this goal can be accomplished by the Europeanization of the Croatian legal system and a return to the original Croatian institutions and legal values.

Professor Welling Teaches in Croatia

In May Sarah N. Welling '78, Alumni Professor of Law, traveled to Eastern Europe and spent a month teaching at the University of Rijeka, located in the western part of Croatia. She was one of two American law professors who visited Croatia under the auspices of the United States Information Agency's "Speakers Program."

Professor Welling's visit was a continuation of the exchange started in February, when Dean Vinko Hlaca of the University of Rijeka visited the UK College of Law (see above article). Dean Hlaca planned Professor Welling's itinerary for her visit to Croatia.

"I spent my time lecturing on the structure of the legal profession, legal education, criminal procedure and white collar crime in the United States," said Professor Welling on her return. "Croatia is eager to investigate Western ideas."

In 1992 Welling traveled to Poland to participate in a workshop for the Polish Bar Association focusing on white collar

Professor Welling (center) with members of the law faculty of the University of Rijeka. Dean Hlaca is to her right. They are standing on the steps of the law school ("Pravni Fakultet" is Croatian for "Law Faculty.") crime and money laundering. She has taught criminal law and procedure at the College of Law since 1981. Welling was the 1992 Chair of the Criminal Justice Section of the Association of American Law Schools.

FACULTY NEWS

Richard C. Ausness, Ashland Oil Professor of Law, recently published "Federal Preemption of State Products Liability Doctrines," 44 S.C.L. Rev. 187 (1993). Also this year his article, "The Impact of the Cipollone case on Federal Preemption Law," was published in 15 Journal of Products & Toxics Liability 1 (1993). He has another article going to press as of this writing, "Wild Dunes and Serbonian Bogs: The Impact of the Lucas Decision on Shoreline Management Programs," which will appear in the Denver University Law Review. In Fall, 1992, his article, "Federal Preemption: A Comment on Cipollone" was published in the newsletter of the ABA Torts and Insurance Practice Section, which also published his article on "The Preemptive Effect of FIFRA on Tort Claims Against Pesticide Manufacturers Based on Inadequate Labeling" in its winter 1993 newsletter. In September 1992 his article, "Tobacco Industry Liability" was published in The Lane Report.

Drusilla V. Bakert, Associate Dean, has been reappointed as Co-Chair of the Bylaws Committee for the National Association for Law Placement. She served as Co-Chair of the Committee for 1992-93. She is the proud mother of Andrew Franklin Bakert, born October 29, 1992.

Caroline S. Bratt, W.L. Matthews, Jr. Professor of Law, has been elected an Academic Fellow of the American College of Trust and Estate Counsel. The College is an international association of lawyers who have been recognized as outstanding practitioners in estate and trust planning and related areas.

Mary J. Davis, Assistant Professor of Law, has completed an article entitled "Design Defect Liability: In Search of a Standard of Responsibility," recently published in 39 Wayne L. Rev. No. 3 (August 1993). Professor Davis presented this article at the Randall-Park Faculty Colloquium Series held at the College of Law on October 15, 1992. She currently is working on an article which explores comparative approaches to assessing plaintiffs' fault, primarily in products liability actions. As faculty advisor for the UK Trial Advocacy Board, Professor Davis accompanied the College's first team to be invited to the National Criminal Justice Trial Competition held in Chicago on March 27 - 29, 1993, as one of only 20 schools invited to compete. In addition, she was appointed in November 1992 to serve on the College's Dean Search Committee.

Todd B. Eberle, Associate Dean and Director of Continuing Legal Education, was elected President of the Association of Continuing Legal Education Administrators (ACLEA) at their 1993 Annual Meeting in New York City. He will lead the 400+ member international organization as head of its executive board. Eberle also serves on the Executive Committee of the American Association of Law Schools' (AALS) Section on Continuing Legal Education. He continues as Editor of Continuing Legal Education: The Handbook of the CLE Profession, Fourth Edition (ACLEA 1992) and is completing work on the 1993 supplement to that book.

William H. Fortune, Edward T. Breathitt Professor of Law, chaired a UK/CLE presentation on Legal Ethics on May 15, 1993, and a panel discussion at the 1993 KBA convention on "Hardball Tactics and Difficult Judges." He published a chapter on "Double Jeopardy" in the UK and Illinois CLE handbook on Federal Criminal Law. The 1992 supplement to Underwood and Fortune's Trial Ethics is now available from Little Brown.

John H. Garvey, Ashland Oil Professor of Law, was awarded the Robert M. and Joanne K. Duncan Award for Outstanding Teaching. (He shares this year's award with Martin J. McMahon). Professor Garvey, in collaboration with Frederick Schauer of Harvard University, published The First Amendment: A Reader (West, 1992). He was an associate editor of Fundamentalisms and The State (Chicago, 1992), the third volume of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences' Fundamentalism Project. Professor Garvey is now working on a third edition of Garvey & Aleinikoff, Modern Constitutional Theory (West, 2d ed. 1991). It will be published in early 1994. Professor Garvey is also the author of several recent shorter pieces: "Black and White Images," 56 Law & Contemp. Probs. (forthcoming 1993), "Private Power and the Constitution," 10 Const. Commentary (forthcoming 1993); "The Pope's Submarine," 30 San Diego L. Rev. (forthcoming 1993);

"Cover Your Ears," 43 Case Western Res. L. Rev. 761 (1993); "The Rights of Groups," 80 Ky. L.J. 862 (1992); and "Hauerwas on Religious Freedom," 42 DePaul L. Rev. 161 (1992). His piece "Men Only" will appear as a chapter in a new book by Gerald Dworkin, The Enforcement of Morality by the Law (forthcoming 1993, Westview Press). His piece entitled "Freedom and Representation" will be published as a chapter in a collection entitled Kindred Matters (forthcoming 1993, Cornell University Press). Professor Garvey gave several papers on these themes during the past year for the Association of American Law Schools (Constitutional Law Section), the American Society of International Law, and the law faculties at Case Western Reserve University and the University of San Diego. In June he was a featured speaker at the AALS Constitutional Law Workshop at the University of Michigan Law School.

Eugene R. Gaetke, Wendell Cherry Professor of Law, served as the chair of the College of Law's highly successful dean search committee. In addition, his article, "Money Laundering and Lawyers" (with Professor Sarah Welling) was published in 43 Syracuse L. Rev. (1993) (cited in Abrams & Beale, Federal Criminal Law 2d ed (West 1993)).

Alvin L. Goldman, Dorothy Salmon Professor of Law, continues as Chair of the Labor Law Group Trust, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the U.S. Branch of the International Society for Labor Law. He also continues as an Advisory Editor of Comparative Labor Law Journal. As a founding member of the International Society for Sports Law, he is coordinating the creation of the U.S. branch of that organization and chaired the Program Committee for the annual meeting of the National Academy of Professor Gene Gaetke emphasizing an important point to his first-year Contracts students.

Arbitrators held in Denver. In September of 1992 he presented a paper at a conference in Sydney, Australia, and gave labor law talks to classes in Brisbane, Melbourne and Sydney (see article, this issue). In addition, as co-reporter for the U.S., he prepared his annual contributions to International Labour Law Review. Currently, he continues work on a new edition of his treatise, Labor Law and Industrial Relations in the U.S.A., and has begun work with his colleagues for a new edition of the Finkin, Goldman & Summers casebook Legal Protection for the Individual Employee.

Louise Graham, Willburt Ham Professor of Law, recently published two articles in the Kentucky Law Journal, "Starting Down The Road to Reform: Kentucky's New Long-Arm Statute" and "Implementing Custody Mediation in Family Court: Some Comments On the Jefferson County Experience." For her article on Kentucky's long-arm statute she received the Charles S. Cassis Award for outstanding writing at the College's 1993 Awards Night ceremony. Also this year, the 1993 Update of Kentucky Domestic Relations, which Professor Graham co-wrote with the Hon. James E. Keller (UK Law '66), was published by Banks-Baldwin. In addition, she has been working with UK professor Gregory Brock on a Program Evaluation Grant from the Children's Justice Act to assist in the implementation of Jefferson Family Court. Professor Graham also received a Faculty Grant from UK's Vice Chancellor to study appropriate parameters for noncustodial parents' visitation with minor children after divorce. She is serving on the Attorney General's Child Support Enforcement Commission, and served on the College's Dean Search Committee.

Roberta M. Harding, Assistant Professor of Law, participated this past fall in a panel discussion at Prestonsburg Community College on "Racism in the 1990's." Her first article, "Waiver: A Consequence of the Inadvertent Production of Documents Protected by the Attorney Client Privilege," has been accepted for publication by Catholic University's Law Review. Her second article, "Revisiting the Forum Doctrine after Ferens and Finley," is being considered for publication by several law reviews. This summer she worked on three articles that are works in progress: an article on women serial killers; an article comparing prisoners' rights in Italy and the United States; and an article she is co-authoring with a condemned inmate that addresses another way to attack the unconstitutionality of the death penalty through the Equal Protection clause. This May Professor Harding and co-counsel successfully won a case in which the Commonwealth was seeking the death penalty. In June her artwork was exhibited at the KBA convention in Louisville. In August Professor Harding was a guest lecturer at a CLE program exploring different issues confronted by attorneys who practice civil business litigation. She remains faculty advisor to two student organizations: the Association of Black Law Students and the Student Public Interest Law Foundation.

Michael P. Healy was promoted to Associate Professor of Law with tenure in spring 1993. During the past year, he published "Judicial Review and CERCLA Response Actions: Interpretive Strategies in the Face of Plain Meaning," 17 Harvard Environmental Law Review 1 (1993), and "The Preemption of State Hazardous and Solid Waste Regulations: The Dormant Commerce Clause Awakens Once More," 43 Washington University Journal of Urban and Contemporary Law 177 (1993). The latter article was part of a symposium on the United States Supreme Court's Environmental Term. Professor Healy is beginning work on an article that will address the legality of solid waste flow control ordinances in light of the Supreme Court's dormant commerce clause decisions. During last spring's semester, Professor Healy taught a new course on legislation. He will be serving as the faculty advisor to the Journal of Natural Resources and Environmental Law for the 1993-94 academic year.

Robert G. Lawson, W.L. Matthews, Jr. Professor of Law, recently published a complete revision of his book on Kentucky Evidence Law. He completed work on Kentucky's new evidence code and, with Professor William H. Fortune and the Hon. William S. Cooper '70, conducted eight day-long seminars around Kentucky on the new evidence code for UK/CLE. Professors Lawson and Fortune have contracted with Michie Company to write a book on Kentucky Criminal Law.

Professor Lawson teaching another section of Criminal Procedure.

Thomas P. Lewis, William T. Lafferty Professor of Law, recently published an article as the "Introduction" to "SPECIAL FEATURE Commonwealth V. Wasson: Invalidating Kentucky's Sodomy Statute," 81 KY. L.J. 423 (1993). An opinion piece on "Judicial Activism," submitted at the invitation of the University of Louisville Alumni magazine, the Brandeis Brief, will appear in the Summer 1993 issue of that publication.

Martin J. McMahon, Laramie L. Leatherman Professor of Law, recently published "Tax Reform for Fairness and Simplicity: Let Economic Growth Take Care of Itself," 50 Washington & Lee Law Review No. 2 (1993). Also this year, cumulative supplements are being published to three of his books: Federal Income Taxation of Individuals (with B. Bittker) (Warren, Gorham & Lamont, 1988), Federal Income Taxation of Business Organizations (with P. McDaniel, H. Ault & D. Simmons) (Foundation Press, 1991) and Federal Income Taxation of Partnerships and S Corporations (with P. McDaniel, H. Ault & D. Simmons) (Foundation Press, 1991). Federal Income Taxation of Individuals was cited by the U.S. Supreme Court in Newark Morning Ledger Co. V. U.S., 71 AFTR 2d 93 (1993). Professor McMahon currently is working on the second edition of Federal Income Taxation of Individuals, and on a new book, Federal Income Taxation (with P. McDaniel, H. Ault, S. Koppleman & D. Simmons), which is under contract with Foundation Press. He also is serving on three committees of the ABA Section on Taxation: the Committee on Teaching Taxation; the Committee on Partnerships; and the Committee on Low Income Taxpayers. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Tax Section of the Association of American Law Schools. In April 1993 Professor McMahon received the Robert M. and Joanne K. Duncan Outstanding Teaching Award, along with Professor Garvey.

Douglas C. Michael was promoted to Associate Professor of Law with tenure in March of 1993. He recently published "The Corporate Officer's Independent Duty as a Tonic for the Anemic Law of Executive Compensation," 17 Journal of Corporation Law No. 4 (Spr. 1993). Professor Michael continues work under a research contract from the Administrative Conference of the United States on a comprehensive review of the use of self-regulation by federal agencies, and remains also the faculty advisor to the Kentucky Law Journal.

John M. Rogers, Brown, Todd & Heyburn Professor of Law and Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, published another book review on sovereign immunity at 87 American Journal of International Law 365 (1993), and recently took on Professor Louis Henkin in a colloquy about the international law of forcible abductions in the January-February Newsletter of the American Society of International Law. His wife, Ying Juan, gave birth to Lawrence Xiong Rogers on April 17, 1993.

Robert G. Schwemm, Wendell H. Ford Professor of Law, was the keynote speaker at a conference on "Where is Fair Housing Headed in this Decade?" at the John Marshall Law School in Chicago in September of 1992. Also last year, the 1992 Supplement to his book, Housing Discrimination: Law and Litigation (Clark Boardman Callaghan) was published. In May of 1993, he presented a paper on "Housing Discrimination and the Appraisal Industry" at a national conference on Home Mortgage Lending Discrimination in Washington, D.C. In June of this year, he was the moderator for the fourth straight year of the annual conference of the National Fair Housing Alliance, also in Washington.

Richard H. Underwood, Spears-Gilbert Professor of Law, recently published two law review articles, "Confessions of an Ethics Chairman," 16 Journal of the Legal Profession 125-82 (1991-92) and "Part-Time Prosecutors and Conflicts of Interest," 81 Kentucky Law Journal 1-104 (1992-93). His article on "Part-Time Prosecutors" was selected for republication in the Criminal Practice Law Review. He also published a book review on Evan Thomas' A Man To See (a biography of Edward Bennett Williams) and the 1992 and 1993 supplements to his book Trial Ethics (Little Brown & Co. 1988, with Bill Fortune). This year Professor Underwood completed his work as editor of the Kentucky Ethics Opinions and Professional Responsibility Handbook (over 900 pages), which is now available from UK/CLE. He is working on another book styled False Witness, which is a history of and handbook on the law of perjury. Professor Underwood continues to serve as the Chairman of the Ethics and Unauthorized Practice Committees of the Kentucky Bar Association, and made CLE presentations on ethics in April for the Mineral Law Center, in May for UK/CLE and the Fayette County Bar Association, and in June at the KBA Convention regarding "Conflicts of Interest and Government Lawyers." He was selected by the 1993 graduating class to speak at their commencement ceremonies.

Harold R. Weinberg, Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs Professor of Law, recently attended an invitational conference cosponsored by the American Law Institute and the American Bar Association. The meeting concerned recommended revisions of Article Nine of the Uniform Commercial Code. This conference followed a three-year study of the Article conducted under the auspices of the Permanent Editorial Board of the U.C.C. in which Professor Weinberg played an advisory role. The study culminated in a report with appendices containing two memoranda authored by Professor Weinberg and a third which he coauthored. The Article Nine revision process is now in a drafting phase in which Professor Weinberg will continue to be involved, primarily with amendments concerning security interests in intellectual property and security interests in tort claims. He also will continue to serve on the ABA's Task Force on Intellectual Property Financing which is studying related statutory or regulatory amendments to federal law. Professor Weinberg recently published "Legislative Process and Commercial Law: Lessons from the Copyright Act of 1976 and the Uniform Commercial Code," 48 Bus. Law. 437 (1993) (coauthored with William Woodward, Temple University School of Law). He also recently published a chapter entitled "Security Interests in Intellectual Property" in Bender's Commercial Code Service (1993). During the fall 1993 semester Professor Weinberg will be teaching an experimental course concerning the drafting of contractual documents. He also served on the College's Dean Search Committee.

Sarah N. Welling, Alumni Professor of Law, has three articles being published this year. The first, "Money Laundering and Lawyers" (with Professor Eugene Gaetke) will appear in 43 Syracuse Law Review (1993), and was cited in Abrams & Beale, Federal Criminal Law 2d ed (West 1993). The other two articles are "White Collar Crime from Scratch: The East European Experience," Wm & Mary L. Rev. (1993) and "Money Laundering: The Anti-Structuring Rules," being published as part of a symposium on money laundering at Ala. L. Rev. (1993). A shorter piece, "Banks Stuck When Customers Caught," was published in the Money Laundering Law Report, July 1992. In May, 1993, under a grant from the United States Information Agency, Professor Welling taught at the University of Rijeka law school in Rijeka, Croatia for one month (see article, this issue). She has given two presentations in the past year. In October, 1992, she spoke at the "Money Laundering Enforcement Update," a conference sponsored by the American Bankers Association and the American Bar Association Criminal Justice Section in Washington, D.C. In April, 1993, she presented "Justice for All: White Collar Crime in Eastern Europe" at the Fayette County Bar Association Law Day Luncheon in Lexington. In June, 1992, Professor Welling was profiled in Money Laundering Law Report, and in October, 1992, she was appointed to the Board of Advisors of Bankers' Hotline, a monthly publication for bankers. Throughout 1992 she was Chair of the AALS Criminal Justice Section, and she organized and moderated a panel discussion on "Rape" for the AALS 1993 Annual Meeting. She also was appointed to the College's Dean Search Committee.

Frederick W. Whiteside, Professor of Law Emeritus, is proofing for publication the third edition of Laws and Programs for Older Kentuckians. He has served six successive terms on the Boards of the Kentucky Bar Foundation and Bluegrass Community Services, Inc.

Moore Joins Law Faculty

Kathryn L. Moore

The College of Law welcomed Kathryn L. Moore, a magna cum laude graduate of Cornell Law School, to its faculty this year. She is teaching a section of first-year Property in the fall and spring semesters of the 1993-94 academic year, and is working with the Curriculum Committee to develop a course on pension law.

Upon graduation from Cornell in 1988, Moore clerked for one year for the Honorable Harold Fong, Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court in Honolulu, Hawaii. While at Cornell she was Note Editor for the Cornell Law Review and was elected to Order of the Coif. She was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1983 with a double major in Economics and French.

Prior to joining the College of Law faculty, Moore was a tax and ERISA associate with the Washington, D.C. office of Sutherland, Asbill & Brennan. "My most interesting work at Sutherland, Asbill," she said recently, "was a case that we won before the U.S. Supreme Court on the issue of the foreign commerce clause. The Court ruled an Iowa statute unconstitutional that included dividends from foreign subsidiaries in the state tax base, but did not include dividends from domestic subsidiaries." An article about the case, "Kraft v. Iowa: The Implications for Foreign Commerce," co-written by Moore (with J. Libin and H. Maloy) was published at 3 State and Local Taxes Weekly 7 (1992). Moore also has been published in The Insurance Tax Review and the Cornell Law Review.

Moore has been planning for a long time to go into teaching. "I worked as a teaching assistant to a law professor while at Cornell, and had the opportunity to teach undergraduates an introductory law course, using the same teaching methods applied in law school," Moore said in a recent interview. "I really loved teaching, and I am happy to be at U.K." While not teaching, she enjoys running, biking and traveling, and hopes to have more time to read novels now than she did as a tax attorney.

FORTY-SIX STUDENTS HONORED AT AWARDS NIGHT

On Tuesday, April 20, the University of Kentucky College of Law honored forty-six current and incoming students at its Awards Night ceremony, co-sponsored by Greenebaum Doll & McDonald. The College announced over $75,000 in student scholarships and awards, with additional awards given to College faculty and staff. The following awards were announced at the ceremony:

♦The Greenebaum Doll & McDonald Awards for Academic Excellence, given to the students placing first in their class for the first and second year of law school, were presented by Phil Scott '67 to Cathy Lilford of Shelbyville (formerly of Zimbabwe, Africa) for the first-year class and as a joint award to Steve Loy of Columbia and Michelle McCarthy of Louisville for the second-year class.

The family of James Park, Sr. of Lexington endowed a scholarship in his memory which Amanda Foley of Versailles was awarded for the 1993-94 school year.

◊South Central Bell Telephone sponsors a scholarship to the College of Law, awarded this year to Chris Woodall of Hopkinsville. The scholarship was presented by Jim Harralson '79, who is counsel for South Central Bell in the company's Birmingham, Alabama, office.

◊The Stites & Harbison Scholarship is awarded for demonstrated academic, communication and leadership skills, and was awarded to Melanie Kilpatrick of Corbin, who was traveling in Europe at the time of the ceremony. The scholarship was presented by Charles Palmer '58 to Melanie's mother, Melinda Stewart.

◊Stoll, Keenon & Park also funds an incoming student scholarship, awarded to Eric Richardson of Villa Hills.

AWARDS NIGHT

◊Professors John Garvey and Marty McMahon each received the R. Michael Duncan and Joanne K. Duncan Outstanding Teaching Award, established by UK law alumni Mike and Joanne Duncan, both '74 grads, of Inez.

Following the awards ceremony, Greenebaum Doll & McDonald hosted a reception for donors and recipients at the UK Faculty Club.

◊Among the scholarships given out after Awards Night were the Joel Williamson Scholarship, awarded to Matt Westfall '96 of Louisville, the Milton M., Sr. and Alene F. Livingston Scholarship, awarded to Chris Brown '96 of Volga, the Lyn Bennett Scholarship, awarded to Dawn Logsdon '95 of Radcliff and the Andrews & Kennedy Scholarship, awarded to Lowell Lee Stokes '96 of Louisville.

UK FIELDS TEAM FOR JESSUP COMPETITION

For the first time in several years, the College of Law fielded a team in the Regional Jessup International Law Moot Court competition, held in February in Bloomington, Indiana. Members of the team were Ron Broudy '93 from Atlanta, GA, Michelle Ciccarelli '93 from Berea, Christine DeMaria '93 from Lexington, Julia Costich '93 from Lexington and Cawood Prewitt '93 from Paris. Broudy, Ciccarelli and DeMaria traveled to Bloomington for the oral arguments, while Costich and Prewitt were the chief memorial (brief) writers, with assistance from other team members.

UK's team went two and two in the preliminary rounds, finishing in a tie for third place out of the eight teams competing. The judges had to go to a third tiebreaker (raw scores) to determine the top four teams, and on that basis UK was just edged out of the final rounds. All in all, however, the UK team acquitted itself well, considering that the team was self-selected, entered the competition late, and received no academic credit for its participation. It is hoped that this team's fine performance will encourage other students to enter the competition next year.

Professor and Associate Dean John Rogers congratulates Jessup International Law Moot Court Team member Michelle Ciccarelli '93 while other team members look on. COLLEGE OF LAW ADMITS CLASS OF 1996

The College of Law has admitted another outstanding group of students for its 1993 entering class. However, following a national trend which began elsewhere three years ago, the number of applications to the College of Law dropped this year for the first time since 1986. This may be due in part to a significant drop in the number of Kentuckians who took the LSAT test this year.

Although applications were down from almost 1400 last year to 1200 this year, the drop is relatively small overall and competition is still fierce, according to Lyn Kennedy '83, Associate Dean and Chair of the Admissions Committee. "Twelve hundred applications is a far cry from the 620 applications the College received in 1986," said Dean Kennedy.

While Dean Kennedy did not as of this writing have a profile of the entering class, she provided this brief overview of some of the outstanding people expected to join the Class of 1996:

*The daughter & sister of UK law graduates

*The son & brother of UK law graduates

CAREER SERVICES REPORT

by Associate Dean Drusilla V. Bakert

In a difficult economic climate for new lawyers nationwide, College of Law graduates continue to outperform the market. In 1992, nationwide only 83.5% of new law graduates reporting were employed six months after graduation; the rate for UK law graduates was 92%.

However, UK students are finding fewer positions with private firms, as are law graduates everywhere. The percentage of law graduates nationwide who went into private practice is 59%, down from a high of 64% in 1988. The placement of UK law graduates in private practice was only 55% in 1992, down from 79% in 1988. This may be due in part to so many 1992 UK graduates finding judicial clerkships: 20% of those reporting were clerking for state or federal judges, well above the national figure of 12.4%. Other 1992 graduates are working in state or federal government positions (7%), for corporations or accounting firms (8%), with public interest groups (4%) or in nontraditional jobs (3%). Three percent of 1992 grads reporting are pursuing advanced degrees.

As of this writing only preliminary results are available for the 1993 graduating class. A number of students found employment before graduation, but over half the class was still looking in May 1993. This is somewhat lower than usual: in most years from 55% to 65% of the class is employed by graduation. Over 63% of those reporting are employed by private firms, and 17% are in judicial clerkships. Those leaving Kentucky as of May 1993 have found jobs in Atlanta (2), Chicago, Columbus, OH, Nashville (3), San Diego (2), Palo Alto, CA, Seattle, and Huntington, WV.

The Class of 1993 has set an record for UK graduating classes: four members of the class are clerking for judges on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Sandra Turner of Middlesboro is clerking for Judge Pierce Lively, Ron Broudy of Atlanta, GA, is clerking for Judge Bailey Brown, Todd Childers of Corbin is clerking for Judge Eugene Siler, Jr. and Chris Ehrman of Louisville is clerking for Judge Harry Wellford.

Law firm budget tightening not only has decreased the number of graduates going into private practice, but also has affected the summer job prospects for current students. To help students gain legal experience, even when they cannot find a paying summer job, the Career Services Office last year surveyed public interest and public service organizations in Kentucky and elsewhere about available volunteer positions. Many first- and second-year students took advantage of this information and worked as volunteers this summer for a wide range of employers, from the Mediation Center in Lexington to the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington to Alaskan Legal Services. Some of these students received grants from the Student Public Interest Law Foundation to help pay expenses.

Over the summer the Career Services Office surveyed law firms, government agencies and public interest groups regarding their legal practice and hiring plans. If you were not contacted, but would like to be listed so that UK students or graduates can contact you or your organization regarding employment prospects, please contact Associate Dean Drusilla Bakert, 261 Law Building, (606) 257-8320.

College of Law Holds 84th Commencement

by Associate Dean Carolyn M. Kennedy '83

The College of Law held Commencement Ceremonies for the Class of 1993 on Saturday, May 8, 1993, in the Concert Hall of the Singletary Center for the Arts in Lexington.

On the preceding evening, the dean and faculty hosted a reception for the graduates and their families at Spindletop Hall. Approximately 400 people enjoyed the occasion and the warm weather on the porch and lawn of Spindletop.

At four o'clock the next afternoon, the processional of the College's 84th graduation began to enter the Concert Hall and proceed across the stage before being seated for the traditional program of three speakers, each representing a facet of the profession.

Representing the 1993 graduates was Ron Broudy, who finished first in the class with the highest grade point average. Ron, a scholarship student originally from Atlanta, talked and reminisced about experiences shared by the 1993 class over the past three years, receiving applause and laughter from his classmates.

On behalf of the bar, then President of the Kentucky Bar Association, Joe Bill Campbell '68, addressed the packed hall. Looking back over his 25 years in practice, he challenged the graduates to honesty and integrity in all dealings, passing along to them three words that could assure their success with clients, colleagues and judges: "Return phone calls."

Chosen by the graduates to address them on behalf of the faculty was Professor Rick Underwood. Professor Underwood presented only a few, very funny, words reflecting on his own graduations, telling the crowd that he preferred to honor them with "a musical bouquet." A young cellist in formal attire emerged from the wings to play several minutes of Bach, to everyone's delight. Professor Underwood's final message to the Class of 1993 was delivered in the form of a Chinese proverb, taken on stage from a fortune cookie and read, of course, by Professor Bill Fortune. The fortune was, "If someone tells you that there are too many lawyers and not enough engineers, tell them that there are not enough cello players."

WE'RE OUTA HERE!!!

Two honors traditionally are conferred prior to presentation of degrees. The first is the sterling silver Faculty Cup, which is awarded to the graduate who made the most significant contribution to the environment of the College as a whole. Selected by secret ballot of the faculty and unknown to all but the dean until the moment of the announcement, the winner of the Faculty Cup this year was Doug Kemper of LaGrange. Doug served as President of the Student Bar Association and was the student member of the Dean Search Committee.

The second honor to be announced is the Order of the Coif. The following graduates stood to be recognized as eligible for election to the Order of the Coif for placing in the top ten percent of the graduating class, pending receipt of spring semester grades:

Thomas E. Bartrum, Louisville
Ron Broudy, Lexington
Lloyd C. Chatfield II, Lexington
Julia F. Costich, Lexington

Douglas W. Cox, Lexington
Christopher C. Ehrman, Louisville
David T. Faughn, Richmond
Douglas C. Franck, Louisville
Jane O. Hampton, Lexington
Lisa M. Herb, Seattle, WA
Jonathan D. Niemeyer, Lexington
Bradley P. Rhoads, Madisonville
W. Craig Robertson, Lexington
Charles C. Simms III, Bardstown
Jeffrey L. Spears, Flatwoods
Sandra L. Turner, Middlesboro
Roger Wright, Lexington

The Class of 1993 also was notable for containing a record number of African-American graduates in a single class, seven Kentuckians and one nonresident from the Bronx, New York.

DEVELOPMENT

This annual Development Report gives me my best opportunity each year to thank each of you for everything you do for the College of Law. For the countless volunteer hours many of you have spent on your class reunions, for the letters you have written as part of the Class Agent program, for the hospitality and friendship you have shown me in your homes and offices as I travel throughout the state, and, of course, for your financial support, the simple words THANK YOU don't seem enough.

1992 was an exceptional year for the College of Law. Not only was it a year that saw us top our past record of private support, it was a year where over 1,000 UK College of Law alumni made gifts in support of the law school. This represents an increase in our total percentage of participation from only 11% in 1991 to over 22% in 1992, and that is an increase for which each of you can be proud.

As you examine this report of the accomplishments of your law school, please keep in mind that the UK College of Law can only be as good as the fine faculty we are able to attract and keep, the exceptional students who have elected to attend our school, and the remarkable people throughout Kentucky and the nation who are UK College of Law alumni.

Under the leadership of our new dean, David Shipley, it's an exciting time to be a part of the University of Kentucky College of Law. Please let me know if there is ever anything I can do to be of assistance to you. Again, THANK YOU!

Deborah A. Wells
Director of Development

BERT COMBS SCHOLARS

In 1991, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the UK College of Law lost one of their dearest friends—Bert T. Combs '37. On the anniversary of his passing, friends and associates joined Kentucky Governor Brereton C. Jones, UK President Charles Wethington, UK Board of Trustees Chairman Edward T. Breathitt '51 and Dean Biff Campbell '69 for a press conference to announce the establishment of The Bert Combs Scholars.

In memory of Governor Combs' accomplishments in support of education and of his love of Kentucky and his law school, the College of Law's largest memorial endowment was established. This fund represents one of the most prestigious scholarships available at UK today and, indeed, one of the top legal scholarship programs offered by any law school in the nation.

Bert Combs Scholars will be chosen by a competition among the brightest and best applicants to the law school each year beginning with the 1994 entering class. Recipients will receive three-year full tuition scholarships and annual living stipends.

Alumni of the College along with family members and friends of Governor Combs have already committed over $650,000 in gifts and pledges toward the goal of $1 million. In 1992, nearly $150,000 in cash gifts were recorded for the fund along with another $500,000 in pledges payable over the next four years.

We invite you to be part of the future by supporting The Bert Combs Scholars. Gifts and future pledges may be made to The Bert Combs Scholars, UK College of Law, 227 Law Building, Lexington, KY 40506-0048. Please do your part for the future of your law school and its commitment to quality education in the memory of one of Kentucky's greatest citizens, Bert T. Combs.

SPECIAL NOTICE

This Development Report gratefully acknowledges the generosity of alumni and friends. Your gifts made between January 1, 1992 and December 31, 1992 have provided support for operation of ongoing College of Law programs and have increased our endowment to ensure the College's excellence in the years to come. Thank you.

If we have inadvertently omitted your name, misspelled it, or failed to place it in the proper category, we sincerely apologize. Please notify our Development Office of our mistake so that we can correct it in the future by calling (606) 257-3208 or (606) 257-3103.

HOMEcoming '92

They came from far and wide—from recent years and from the past. Home to Lexington for UK Homecoming '92. The annual UK College of Law Alumni Homecoming Cocktail Party was held last October to celebrate the years since graduation.

If you missed the fun in '92, why not mark your calendars for the festivities this year. We'll gather together again to exchange war stories and tales of law school past and law careers present. Plan now to join your classmates at the annual UK College of Law Alumni Homecoming Cocktail Party at the Radisson Hotel in downtown Lexington on Saturday, October 2 prior to the homecoming game against Ole Miss. Invitations will be mailed in September. See you there!

Gathered at Homecoming '92 are Charlie Burton '50, Daniel D. Ball '48, Paul Oberst '39 and John D. Welch '51.

Young alumni return for Homecoming, Mark Brengelman '92 and his wife, Kelly.

Tip The Scales In Your Favor

Alumni of the UK
College of Law who graduated prior to 1965

will soon begin receiving a new publication, The Counselor. This newsletter format will deal with issues in estate and financial planning geared to help you make knowledgeable decisions regarding charitable contributions. The first issue on tax planning for 1993 should arrive within the next month.

This has been the year of tax indecision. Will Congress add a tax bracket? Will capital gains be treated more favorably? Will the alternative minimum tax be revised? Despite the hoopla, Congress has done very little to the tax laws this year.

The good news is, the tax laws have barely changed from last year, so you'll have some familiarity with them. The bad news is, without a clear understanding of what the laws will be next year, it's difficult to plan.

We'd like to help you as much as humanly possible. So, we're offering a free booklet, "Simple Ways to Reduce Income Taxes."

This informative, yet easy-to-read publication will explain the provisions that affect most itemizing taxpayers, and suggest methods to reduce your level of taxation this year and in years to come.

For your free copy, please write to UK College of Law, 227 Law Building, Lexington, KY 40506-0048.

UK College of Law Directory Coming Soon!!!

Our UK College of Law Alumni Directory project is nearing completion and soon shipment of the directories will begin.

This comprehensive new volume is a compilation of the most current data available on over 4,000 UK College of Law alumni. This information has been obtained from questionnaire mailings, telephone research and/or from alumni records. Now that the editing, proofreading and printing are almost finished, the distribution of this impressive edition will start.

Directories will be released on or about November 2, 1993. Please allow two to four weeks for delivery. For alumni who reserved a copy of the directory during the verification phase of the project and have a question on their order, or if you wish to place an order, please contact The Bernard C. Harris Publishing Co., Inc. directly at (800) 877-6554.

Our new directory is an excellent way of reliving your school days and getting reacquainted with former UK College of Law classmates. To those who returned their questionnaires - many thanks for your cooperation. And, to those who ordered a copy of the directory - enjoy!

Student/Alumni Phonathon '92

1992 marked the beginning of the annual Student/Alumni Phonathon in support of student programs at the UK College of Law. Students and alumni representing the Student Bar Association, the Kentucky Law Journal, the Moot Court, the Student Public Interest Law Foundation and the Trial Advocacy Board made calls to College of Law alumni asking for donations to assist in student programming. On behalf of the students served by your generosity, please accept our sincere thanks. Following is a brief review of just how you have helped make the law school experience meaningful to the current student body.

Student Bar Association (SBA)

During the 1992 student/alumni phonathon, student volunteers contacted alumni for donations to the SBA's Most Improved Scholar Award. This Award recognizes the law student showing the greatest improvement in his/her grade point average during each semester.

In 1991-92, through gifts from alumni and friends, the SBA created an endowed fund for the award totalling nearly $50,000. Using the interest only from this account, the first semester Award was presented to Pete Cohron '93 followed by the second award to Lynette Muncy '94.

Cohron, who raised his GPA from a 2.4 to a 3.2 during the second semester of his second year, said that he is very happy that the SBA established this Award. "We need something to note improvement in students," he said.

Cohron, originally from Henderson, Kentucky, graduated from the College of Law in May and took the Bar in July. His future career plans include practicing pharmaceutical law in the East and spending time with his wife and two children.

The SBA plans to participate in the 1993 Student/Alumni phonathon this October in hopes of increasing the endowment to a level that will provide a full tuition scholarship each semester for the student showing the most improvement in his/her GPA.

Kentucky Law Journal (KLJ)

Members of the KLJ staff and alumni members of the KLJ Alumni Association were active participants in the 1992 Student/Alumni phonathon to raise money to endow scholarship support for editors of the KLJ.

In the past, money was available from general funds to award scholarship/stipend support for editors of the Journal. Those funds, however, were greatly reduced during the budget cuts experienced by the College. The alumni and staff of the KLJ rose to the occasion by beginning an active campaign to endow a fund to provide annual support for the editors. Such support allows students to devote themselves to the formidable job of publishing one of the country's finest journals.

The scholarship fund has been named in memory of the Journal's former faculty advisor, Donald Winslow. The Donald Winslow Kentucky Law Journal Scholarship Fund has been established and continues to receive support from alumni interested in continuing the fine reputation that the KLJ enjoys.

A former editor of the KLJ said, "the opportunity to work on the Journal was one of the most important parts of my law school experience. The long hours and hard work are overshadowed by the chance to work with some wonderful people and to be a part of recording the advances and changes in the legal profession. I hope all UK College of Law KLJ alumni will join me in continuing to support this scholarship."

Members of KLJ and their alumni will once again be contacting their alumni this fall to supplement the KLJ endowment in hopes of bringing it to a point where scholarships/stipends will be available for years to come for deserving Journal members.

Moot Court

Members of the UK College of Law Moot Court Board and second-year competitors participated in the 1992 phonathon to raise much needed support for the Moot Court program. Money raised during the phonathon was used primarily to offset some of the expenses incurred by the National Team's participation in the Richmond, Virginia regional competition.

In addition to the phonathon, funds for Moot Court expenses come from Board members' annual dues and from donations to the Annual Fund. Members pay $15 in dues annually to cover everyday costs, such as copying and mailing and to reimburse outside judges for expenses during the national team competitions. Dean Campbell has also used funds generated from donations to the Annual Fund to pay expenses incurred in the National Team's competition.

The members of last year's National Team were Doug Cauthen, Michelle Ciccarelli, Lisa Herb, and Gail Luhn Pyle. During the competition, Ciccarelli and Pyle finished runners-up in the Semi-finals, losing to Duke University.

The 1993-94 team members are Kerry Cauthen of Walton, Scott Frost of Union, Priscilla Pritchard of Louisville, and Linda Tally of Erlanger. The members of the Moot Court Board will be participating in the 1993 Phonathon in order to raise funds to purchase new robes and to help defray costs of additional Moot Court competitions. According to Donna Hall, 1993-94 Moot Court President, "There are a number of competitions throughout the country for Moot Court teams, in addition to the Richmond regionals. I think it would be a great experience for the '93-94 Board to make these other competitions available to students by advancing a portion of the registration costs for them."

If you were a member of the Moot Court Board while a student at UK, please donate generously when you are contacted this year.

Student Public Interest Law Foundation (SPILF)

Members of SPILF raised funds both through the phonathon and from other sources for summer fellowships for UK law students.

According to Steve Stoltz '94, "the money will be used almost exclusively to assist students in obtaining summer internships and public interest law jobs."

Summer fellowships were awarded to a number of students including Kathy Gudgel, a 2L student from Lexington, who worked this summer with the Alaskan Legal Services; Sallie Ann Jacobs, a 1L from Lexington who worked with the Fayette County Legal Aid Society; 1L Paul Galanides from Norfolk, Virginia, who worked with the Kentucky Department of Public Advocacy, and others.

Stoltz explained that SPILF had an independent committee of attorneys, professors and others with a public interest background select the Fellowship recipients based on their application and financial needs.

In addition to awarding Fellowships to encourage students to go into public interest law, SPILF has sponsored various speakers throughout the academic year to speak on public interest topics and maintains a library of information on public interest jobs and internships in the Career Services office.

Trial Advocacy Board (TAB)

UK College of Law TAB President Scott Damron '93 credits alumni support from the 1992-93 Student/Alumni Phonathon with enabling TAB to have a very successful year.

The TAB is a fairly new organization at UK, and the current Board has used the funds it raised from the phonathon to conduct a number of activities to ensure its existence well into the future.

TAB members went to several trial competitions, including the ATLA competition in Lansing, Michigan; the Texas Young Lawyers' Association Competition in Toledo, Ohio; and the National Criminal Justice Competition in Chicago, Illinois.

"We held an intra-group competition at school for members of TAB and named a national team to go to Chicago," said Damron. The national team members included John Dolan, Keith Horn, Molly Hyland, and Roger Wright. Karen Imboden was an alternate.

TAB also held two separate competitions at UK: one for the first year class plus the regular second year competition to name the 16 members of the Trial Advocacy Board. "The first year competition had never been done before," said Damron. That competition was held to give the first year students practical experience. "Many times, just a brush with something will help you later on."

TAB is grateful to the support it received from alumni and from the faculty at UK. "I know that there's a lot of support out there, and we are looking forward to bringing home a national trophy," Damron said.

The Family That Gives Together...

At the UK College of Law, we like to think of ourselves as an extended family, and nowhere is it more obvious than in the College's Lafferty Society.

The late Donald Combs '54 was one of the early members of The UK Fellows and The Lafferty Society, and his family has continued his fine example by all becoming members of this esteemed group. Mr. Combs' wife, Alcie, is an active supporter of the law school as are sons, Donald H. Combs '82, and new Lafferty Society members Steven D. Combs '86 and Robert P. Combs '90.

This level of support is of incredible importance to the law school, and we salute the Combs family of Pikeville, Kentucky for their belief in and contributions to the UK College of Law.

Pictured in their law office in Pikeville are Donald H. Combs '82, Steven D. Combs '86, Robert P. Combs '90, and their mother, Alcie Combs.

The Lafferty Society

Listed below are members of The Lafferty Society, the UK College of Law's most prestigious honor society, recognizing those alumni and friends who have made substantial contributions to our law school. Annually members of The Lafferty Society gather for a black tie cocktail reception prior to the UK Fellows dinner dance and for a breakfast meeting during the KBA Convention.

For further information on how you can join this distinguished group of College of Law supporters, please contact either Dean David Shipley at (606) 257-8317 or Debbye Wells at (606) 257-3208.

UK College of Law Reunions

1992 marked the return of the Classes of 1961 and 1962, 1967 and 1972 for their reunion celebrations.

Distinguished members of the Classes of 1961 and 1962 came back to Lexington in October for a festive day at Keeneland followed by cocktails that evening in celebration of their 30th reunion.

At the same time, over 100 members and spouses of the Class of 1972 joined together to mark the 20th anniversary of their graduation from law school. The Class of '72 continued their long history of support for the law school by establishing a Class of '72 Reunion Scholarship endowment which will provide scholarship support annually to a current student based on merit and need. Their reunion included Keeneland races and lunch, a cocktail party that evening at the Radisson, and a farewell brunch

Later in October, the Class of '67 converged on Lexington in celebration of 25 years since their graduation from the UK College of Law. Over 100 alumni and guests met for an elegant dinner at The Lafayette Club (with a program that won't soon be forgotten!), Saturday brunch, Keeneland, the homecoming cocktail party and football game. Joining the class for the festivities were former UK law professors Garrett Flickinger and Gene Mooney along with Emeriti professors Paul Oberst, Burt Ham and Fred Whiteside. The Class of '67 also established a scholarship endowment fund in honor of their 25th reunion that will annually benefit a student at UK.

1993 Alert!!!

Plans are being finalized for Reunion Weekend '93, October 15-17, 1993 when all classes prior to 1943, the Classes of 1952 and 1953, 1963, 1968 and 1973 are all invited back to Lexington for a weekend of fun and memories in the first annual Reunion Weekend. Planned events include a day at Keeneland, reunion dinner, available CLE ethics credit, a football game, and brunches for the classes either in Old Lafferty Hall, the College of
